

Schoolroom and parade, Wolverton

Class sizes were larger than usual during the War due to male teachers being called up to the services. There were many health problems and absences to help with work, housework or as a class to pick blackberries or dig potatoes.

Wolverton
Infants' School

Newport Pagnell school children lining up for a parade with flags.