

Military: Army camp at Wolverton for exercises, 1913

The fields around Wolverton and New Bradwell were filled with camps like this when the British Army carried out military manoeuvres. The public and children could go right into the camps and observed army life at close hand, entertained the troops and missed school due to watching the soldiers in mock battles.

Source MIL 4